Dear Mr. Howard:

The scrap sheets you mentioned that you are interested in are not available to the public.

The strip or scrap sheets, as you call them, are provided to us by private manufacturer. After the planchets/blanks are cut out, leaving the sheets or webbing, as we call it, the material is forced through a chopper and turned into small clips and returned to the manufacturer for re-melting.

Dear Ms. Kriz:

As per your request, the following is a brief explanation of the coin production process.

Until 1965, the Denver Mint was responsible for every aspect of the minting process, beginning with the actual make-up of raw pieces of copper and zinc, silver and copper, copper and nickel alloy, etc. The various compositions were weighed to a form known as a "melt," weighing approximately 500 pounds. The wooden boxes would then be routed to the Melt Room where the contents would be dropped into a furnace and melted into an "ingot," approximately 5' x 14" x 3". The ingots would then be routed to the rolling mills where they were repeatedly passed between two large rolls and flattened to the thickness of whatever denomination of coin was being processed at the time.

The demand for coin became greater than our production capabilities, so two initial phases of producing the cent, quarter, half dollar, dime, and nickel were contracted out to private industry. The Mint continues to punch out the planchets, anneal, upset (mill), and stamp all denominations, except the penny. Since October 1982, our penny blanks have been supplied by private contractor, i.e., Ball Corporation, located in Greenville, Tennessee. The blanks are shipped to us ready for actual stamping of the designs. Also, since October 1982, the composition of pennies was changed from 95% copper and 5% zinc, to 97.5% zinc and 2.5% copper. The penny constitutes approximately 70% of our production.

We have a manufacturer supplying the coils for the half dollar, quarter, dime, and nickel--Olin Brass Corporation. These coils weigh between 4-6 thousand pounds. After the strip or "coils" as they are called are passed through the punch press, the blanks/planchets are run through the various processes. The scrap or "clips" are weighed and shipped to the manufacturer for re-melting or recycling of the material.

The first step of coin processing is punching out the blanks ("planchets") from the strip. Step two--the blanks are routed to annealing furnaces, heated to a temperature of 1,400 degrees Fahrenheit, washed, rinsed, and dried so as to soften and clean the blanks for easier production. They are then upset or "milled" as it is called. This process entails running each blank between a grooved disc and a segment to squeeze the blank to proper diameter and raise an edge on the rim of the blank for better stamping capabilities. The process also prevents wear down of the impression on the coin from constant use.

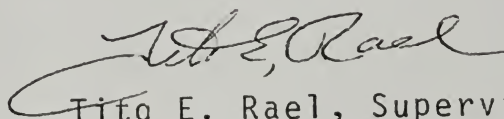

From the mills, the blanks are then routed to the 250-ton presses where the "head" and "tails" are pressed on the blank. After it is stamped, it then becomes a "coin." These presses are capable of stamping 550 pennies per minute. The dies that are used to stamp the impression are interchangeable so the 79 (approximate) presses can be set up on different denominations depending on production requirements.

All coin is processed through screens with pre-cut sized holes to eliminate over/under-sized coins from contaminating acceptable coinage. The coin, after screening, is then routed to the counters where it is machine-counted into canvas bags, weighed by pallet (40-50 bags per pallet), and stored in vaults until shipped to the Federal Reserve Banks. They, in turn, distribute the coin to commercial banks.

We only make coins here at the Denver Mint. All paper money is made at the Bureau of Printing and Engraving in Washington, D.C.

I hope you will find this information helpful.

Sincerely,.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

In reference to your reader's concern about a vendor pressing a penny into a souvenir, Mr. Tito E. Rael, Chief of Exhibits and Public Sales Division, has discussed this issue with the U.S. Secret Service. It is not illegal, as long as a coin is not defaced for fraudulent purposes. An example is a person cannot flatten a penny to the size of a nickel and then use it as a nickel. Your readers may write to Mr. James S. Griffiths, "Special Agent in Charge," U.S. Secret Service, 1660 Lincoln St., Denver, CO, 80264 for further information.

Dear Mr. Lewis:

I visited Fisherman's Wharf while in San Francisco over Memorial Day week-end, and was interested in learning the legality of street vendors pressing U.S. pennies into souvenirs.

For 25¢ tourists give vendors a penny from your pocket - the vendors insert into large machines with an arm that presses the coin into a souvenir. (sample attached)

Is it legal to deface U. S. coins in this manner or are they using hidden blanks in place of tourists' coins?

I posed my question to the vendor and he chose to ignore me.

Thank you.

Dear Mr. Sherwood:

I am sorry you were disappointed with the appearance of the Denver Mint during your visit. You are correct in assessing a funding problem as a possible reason for people having to wait in inclement weather. However, the manager responsible for public concerns has been putting emphasis on those areas you addressed with some results:

1. A new modern canopy has been requested, with engineering designs now being prepared. In keeping with the architecture, several avenues have to be explored and the Historical Society has to be involved since the Denver Mint is on the register of historic buildings.
2. The new expansion will include a new tour route that will enhance the tour.
3. A new sound system is being ordered as soon as the expansion and improvement of the Denver Mint is completed, and we know what type of sound system will not be interrupted by our security radio system. The sound system was adequate until last year when we had asbestos removed from all areas, including the tour route. I can assure you when the expansion is completed in early 1986, the tour route sound system, etc., will be most impressive.

Hopefully, you will be able to visit us again and not be disappointed. We appreciate your taking the time to address your concerns.

Dear Superintendent:

Several weeks ago, my family and I visited the Denver Mint. I was surprised to note the age and apparent "run-down" appearance of the place. What the construction is accomplishing I do not know, but changes are needed.

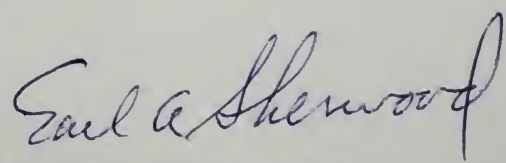

Primarily, it seems that we citizens could have a bit better service during the visitation procedure as follows:

1. Standing out on the sidewalk in long lines, in the rain is ridiculous.
2. With the horrible accoustics in all the rooms and halls in which the guides talk, it is impossible for any person to understand any of what is being said.
3. The large tour groups are too unhandy for the guides, not to mention the fact that they run into each other.

The halls and rooms should have accoustic tile and the guides should have modern portable PA systems to do the job. They are obviously frustrated with the present situation.

Obviously political/funding problems enter into solving the above situations. Our US Congressmen do seem determined to pour billions into other countries and unworthy domestic sinkholes. Considering that the Mint has been in operation since 1904, it is about time that it enters the modern age. If I did not know better, I would have bet that I visited the mint in Russia or China, where really old-fashioned facilities exist.

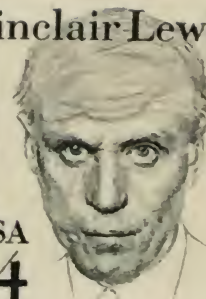

Good luck! Sincerely yours,

Earl A Sherwood

Dear Mr. Thomas:

I am sorry for the inconvenience you experienced during your visit to Denver and the United States Mint. As you may have noticed, the expansion of the Mint has created an inconvenience not only for our handicapped visitors but for all of us.

Ordinarily, we accommodate handicapped visitors in wheelchairs, etc., but at this time, the elevator we use to transport such visitors is being replaced and will not be ready until late August. However, included in our Mint expansion is a special elevator specifically for this purpose. We hope the construction will be completed by early 1986.

As for parking availability, I am afraid we do not have the space available for handicapped visitors at this time. We are looking into the possibility of such a convenience in the near future.

I hope this experience will not prevent you from visiting the Mint again. I assure you that we will make every effort to see that you enjoy the tour.

Please feel free to call our Public Relations Director, Mr. Tito Rael, at (303) 844-5588, for future accommodations. Thank you.

I recently read an article in the San Antonio Express, (clipping enclosed) concerning the Susan B. Anthony's and some 1976 Eisenhower coin sets that your mint had and would sell.

I would like three sets of the 1979 and 1980 from all three mints, Denver, Philadelphia and San Francisco, which were referenced at $10.00 each. I would also like the 1980 set of three coins, including an Anthony dollar that was referenced at $4.00 per set; I am requesting five sets of these.

I have enclosed my check for $50.00 which should cover the cost. If not please call me at 512-684-9791 so I may send the additional monies. Thanks for your help.

Manufacture of the Eisenhower dollars started in 1971, and the last such coin was made in 1978. The Eisenhower dollar is 1.5 inches in diameter and weights 23 grams.

"It was too cumbersome to carry," said Rael. "People who had complained about the old silver dol-about with the Eisenhower dollar; it was bigger."

Both the Eisenhower and the An-copper core with nickel on each side.

"A few of the Eisenhower dollars made in 1971 were 80 percent silver," Rael said, "but by their last year

Dear Publicist:

Our company publishes a series of condensed travel guides on major North American cities called Travel Tips. We have listed your organization as shown on the enclosed sample page. The listing is free of charge, but we would like you to assist us in two ways:

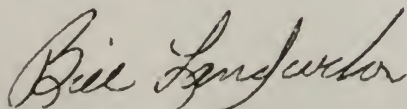

- 1) Please check the accuracy of the enclosed statement (particularly address and phone number), and let us know immediately if anything needs to be changed. We will reword descriptions, if you wish, but due to space limitations, changes must not increase the length of the entry.
- 2) Send us a copy of your promotional/informational brochure for our files.

As part of our publication, we include a calendar of activities that we update every three months. We will be happy to include announcements about special programs, displays or exhibits sponsored by your organization, provided you supply us with dates, descriptions and details in accordance with the following schedule:

Spring (March 1-June 30)	Due February 1
Summer (June 1-September 30)	Due May 1
Fall (September 1-December 31)	Due August 1
Winter (December 1-March 31)	Due November 1

Travel Tips are available on 40 major North American cities and are distributed to approximately 1000 retail travel agent subscribers in the U.S. and Canada. These mini travel guides are designed to be copied and inserted into the ticket jackets of travelers, many of whom will be visiting your city. It is our hope that use of Travel Tips will stimulate interest in your organization's activities. Please call if you have questions or comments. Once again, being included in Travel Tips costs nothing other than the postage and time it takes to send us the information we need. Thank you for your cooperation.

Sincerely,

Temperatures shown above are daily highs and lows for the month indicated, based on weather bureau statistics from previous years. Rain days per month indicates the number of days (on average) that measurable precipitation is recorded. Weather in Denver is dry during most seasons of the year, although heavy accumulations of snowfall are not unusual during the winter. Heavy clothing and boots are recommended from late November through March. Spring and fall are transition seasons, and visitors should come prepared for anything from rain, wind, and cold weather to warm sunshine. Hot daytime temperatures are the norm during summer months, but because evenings are usually on the cool side, a lightweight sweater or jacket is advisable even in July and August.

Gentlemen:

I would appreciate hearing from you if you have an display at the Mint either real or replica of a Gold Bullion (Brick bar type) similar to that, that may have been recovered from a sunken Spanish Galleon, or perhaps an "up to date" either US or foreign Bullion Bar.

Should you have a picture of the Bullion, rather in detail form, that should suffice. In the event you have that, I would appreciate immensely if you could send me a copy.

Your cooperation in my being able to view such an object would be appreciated greatly.

If you can furnish me with neither information perhaps you may know where I can view such an object.

I Thank you so much for any information you may have available

Dear Mr. Schultz:

In line with your telephone request, enclosed are three slides. Number 1 is a gold display. The Denver Mint has approximately 40 million ounces of gold stored in vaults, along with Fort Knox and West Point. Slide #2 is a photo of a shaker or "riddler" which eliminates any over/under sized coins from going into general circulation. It also eliminates the process of physical inspection of coins. Slide #3 is a 250-ton Bliss press, capable of stamping 550 coins per minute, both heads and tails, on a coin simultaneously. I hope the information is useful to you.

Dear Mr. Eleyet:

In September of 1980, we received a letter from you requesting information on a token. Well, today one of our Information Receptionists, Mr. Doug Engstrom, was doing some research and came upon your letter. Since Mint employees are not allowed to bring coins into the building, a catering service is provided and employees exchange dollar bills for tokens that are used in the vending machines. Your token is one used in place of a quarter. Mr. Engstrom was quite excited to come across your letter and compare the tokens. The Denver Mint has been on this program of using tokens since approximately 1982; therefore, in 1980, we had no way of knowing they existed.

I hope you still have the tokens.

SUBJECT: Dr. Hunter's Letter Dated February 21, 1986

TO: Nora W. Hussey, Superintendent

The two 1984 zinc cents that Dr. George Hunter refers to are representative of 1984 Denver Mint Souvenir Sets produced by Denver.

We were experiencing some difficulties with the zinc coin delivered to us from the Coining Division. My decision was to burnish the penny in steel media and soap for a few minutes to improve the appearance and quality of the coin sets. The process did improve the sets, however, we noticed some abrasion effect on the surface of the penny and decided to scrap the idea and return to the process of washing the coin prior to packaging.

The Denver Mint has not embarked on any type of idea or program to improve the appearance or quality of coins or coin sets for any other purpose than to produce an attractive product for the public.

Dear Sir,

Sometime in December I visited the Denver mint & was told about some 50¢ pieces that were going to be made but the machine had broken down, so we were told, so we could not purchase any that day.

When I got back home I sent for a couple of them but as yet have not received them but this month the charge was on my Visa card. The charge was for $21.

The charge was made Feb 25
Now where are my 50¢ pieces.

What you have in your possession is a Denver Mint Souvenir Medal.

The composition is 90% copper; 10% zinc. It is 1 1/2" in diameter.

For $1.00, visitors may buy blanks and actually stamp their own souvenir medal at the Denver Mint. It is worth $1.00. The press is a 1946 Columbia single-strike press that has been modified to strike the blank twice with approximately 40 tons of force.

Dear Mr. Mead:

Attached is an invitation from Mr. Robert Brueggeman, Bourse Chairman, to attend the Dallas Second Annual Coin and Stamp Exposition. In the past, the Denver Mint has participated with exhibits and coin sales at these popular functions--the last one was in Corpus Christie, Texas, a few years ago.

In 1984, the Denver Mint was invited to shows in Houston and Amarillo, Texas, however, Headquarters did not authorize the requests due to budgeting. This year we would like very much to participate in some of these functions.

We would appreciate authorization to attend this show in Dallas.

Re: The Second Annual Dallas Coin & Stamp Exposition

Dear Sir:

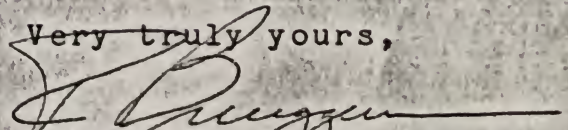

We are pleased to have the opportunity to request your presence as well as your exhibit at our Second Annual Dallas Coin and Stamp Convention this December 11-14, 1986.

Please be advised that we will provide the required space and that our Security Company is Positive Protection, Inc., the same firm that provides security for the A.N.A., F.U.N., and many more.

Last year we placed 256 Bourse Dealers in the Dallas Market Center North Hall and expect over 300 dealers this year. Public attendance will be approximately 6,000 plus. Also Coin World is considering doing an issue around D.C.S.E. as they do A.N.A., F.U.N., ect.

If there is further information necessary please don't hesitate to contact me.

Dear Ms. Ratts:

We were very pleased to read your letter in which you appreciate the "money eagle." Initially, I got the idea when I visited the Philadelphia Mint some years ago. They had one on the wall. I was told that you could purchase them already made, however, when I ordered one, I was told that the company was not making them any more. Therefore, I designed one and Annie Wakimura put the coins together. I then designed a second one which is from a design of the eagle family which will appear on the four gold bullion coins issued this year.

The money is glued on velcro material which is stapled on a 1/2" thick plywood board. We use a glue called household "Goop" which sells for approximately $4.00 per tube. This seems to do the job in holding the coins onto the material.

Good luck and thank you for your interest.

Mrs. Hussey,

I was one of the participants of the American Numismatic Association tour of the Denver Mint that was conducted last week.

My letter to you is for information that I was not able to obtain and was advised to write to you for same. There is a room next to the room in which we left our personal belongings. I believe the other room was 103. In it is a very large and magnificent desk. I was not allowed to photograph said desk. My letter to you is to request a photo of the desk. The woman at desk was a Mrs. Velez or Vasquez. I apologize for lack of information but I misplaced my notes. Could you please let me know of cost for picture of the desk. I have enclosed a self addressed stamped envelope for your reply. If you sell a book of furniture used in the mint I would like to know of this too. But I reiterate regarding the desk as being the most important of my requests.

I had a great time on the tour and hope in the years to come to be able to once again visit your facility. I thank you in advance for your trouble and reply.

Dear sir,

I am writing you to find out about your gold coins. One ones I am interested in is the $5, $10, and $20 or 1/2 eagle, eagle or double eagle. I want to know what you charge for each coin and postage. Also, if these coins are legal tender or are they commemorative. If you have a coin book with all U.S. coins and their prices I would appreciate one.

Thank you,
Hal Turner

Dear Renee:

Since the U.S. Mint is in the process of issuing a new medal order catalog in the near future, if you will send us a check for the presidential medals you want at $1.00 each, we will, on a one-time basis, ship them to you.

Enclosed is a coin cleaning article you may find useful. For your convenience, we have also enclosed a form you may fill out to join our 1.6 million customers that are on our mailing list for present and future coins, coin sets, and medals being offered.

Thank you for writing to us.

Sincerely,

RE: Official Miniature Presidential Series

To Whom It May Concern:

With reference to the above mentioned collection, we are in need of the Carter and Reagan coins, as well as the strips of plastic that hold them in place.

If you have a cleaner for the coins, we would appreciate it.

Please forward same to the address on this letter.

Thanking you in advance for your attention to this matter, I am

Sincerely yours,

Dear Ms. Gabbard:

We checked with Secret Service personnel regarding the matter of concern in your letter, dated September 9, 1986. Their position on photocopying U.S. currency is that as long as it is in black and white and 3/4 smaller or 1 1/2 times larger than the original size of the bill, it is not illegal. We are returning your original letter.

If you have further questions, you may want to call the Secret Service Office, here in Denver, at (303) 844-3027.

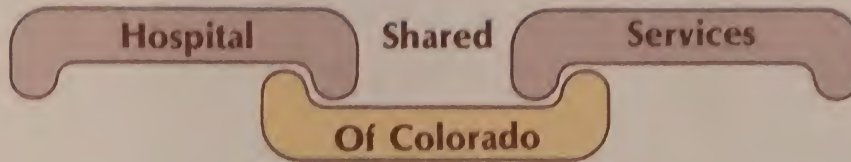

Thank you.

Dear Sir or Madam:

Thought you might find the enclosed mailing which was recently received at our offices of interest.

I believe it is illegal to photocopy U.S. currency.

Thanks.

Dear Mrs. Gould:

The only Peace Medals that have been produced and offered for sale by the U.S. Mint are composed of copper and zinc. In 1985, we had a vault clearance sale since the Peace Medals will no longer be produced. The only Indian Peace Medals left for sale are:

#627 Historic Indian Peace (Grant)	$ 6.40 ea.
#631 Historic Indian Peace (Cleveland)	$12.00 ea.
#632 Historic Indian Peace (Harrison)	$12.00 ea.

If you are interested in any of the medals, send a check (Cashier's) for the full amount to:

Sirs

I am interested in obtaining some of the old silver "Peace Medals" that I see occasionally in coin stores. Apparently these were minted to give to the various Indian Tribes upon signature into these United States. Most of these are about 2 1/2 inches in diameter. If these are not available from your department of the mint, please forward my letter to the proper department. I thank you for your attention to this somewhat odd request.

Cordially,

Barbara Gould

Would appreciate an

Dear Mr. Gunkel:

According to the Secret Service here in Denver, as long as the reproduction of currency is either 40% larger or 40% smaller than the original size and if the picture of Santa's face is only pasted on with the original Washington not cut out, there is no fraud. If you wish further information, you may want to contact the Secret Service office nearest you.

Thank you for your concern.
